

The first version of the program was made during parts A and B of the assignment, and is based around direct bitwise arithmetic to calculate states and state transitions. The second version of the code is designed around enumerated states. Both versions transition between the same states, albeit the first also displays more information from the internal states. The enum version is noticeably simpler and has more safety.